“ONE SOURCE, THREE BRANCHES” (Yi Yuan San Qi)

Du Mai, Ren Mai, and Chong Mai all arise from inside the lower abdomen and emerge together at the perineum before diverging into three separate pathways -- Du posteriorly along the spine, Ren anteriorly along the abdomen/chest, Chong internally along the spine with a superficial branch beside the Kidney meridian. Chinese: Yi Yuan San Qi -- “one source, three branches.”

THE DEFINING TRAIT

None of the Eight Extraordinary Vessels pertains to a zang or fu organ, and none has an interior-exterior paired relationship the way the 12 primary meridians do. Only Du Mai (GV) and Ren Mai (CV) have their own dedicated acupuncture points -- the other six vessels borrow points from the primary meridians they cross (their “coalescent points,” Jiao Hui Xue).

“SEA” TITLES

Du Mai (GV):	sea of the YANG meridians
Ren Mai (CV):	sea of the YIN meridians
Chong Mai:	sea of 12 meridians · blood · zang-fu organs

QUIZ 5 MAINT REVIEW (from Dr. Zhang's live review, per transcript)

- PC's pertaining organ is the Pericardium; connecting organ is San Jiao (Triple Energizer) -- an interior-exterior (yin-yang) pair.
- PC has three branches: internal, superficial, and an upper branch; it starts at the chest and runs to the hand.
- The Liver meridian is the only primary meridian that runs across/connects with the external genitalia.
- The Liver meridian connects to the Lung meridian (closing the 12-meridian circulation sequence).
- Both Hand-Shaoyang (SJ) and Foot-Shaoyang (GB) meridians run across the ear and the lateral side of the head -- combine both for lateral headache.
- GB starts at the outer canthus and ends at the tip of the 4th toe.
